

KIMBERLY ANN PRIEST

Kimberly Ann Priest is the winner of the 2024 Backwaters Prize in Poetry from the University of Nebraska Press for her book Wolves in Shells as well as the author of Slaughter the One Bird (Sundress Publications), finalist for the American Best Book Awards, with four books forthcoming from Texas Review Press and Unsolicited Press. Her writing and scholarly interests are deeply focused on gender-based trauma, domestic ecologies, ecofeminism, disabilities studies, classic film studies, and writing for therapeutic purposes. A survivor of gendered violence and an active outdoorswoman, she has participated in initiatives to increase awareness concerning sexual assault, survivorship, and healing through nature and artistic expression. Her literary interests include women poets and storytellers, stories that explore religious imaginations and spirituality, feminist narratives of trauma, displacement, endangered species, and rewilding, and travel and nature writing. She has received residencies from Monson Arts, SAFTA, Owsley Fork, and Proximity Writer's House and she has served as an editorial intern for Sundress Publications and Black Earth Institute as well as an associate editor for six years with the Nimrod International Journal of Prose and Poetry. Winner of the 2019 Heartland Poetry Prize and a Brooklyn Girls Books prize, her work has appeared in literary journals such as Copper Nickel, North Dakota Quarterly, Salamander, RHINO, Beloit Poetry Journal, Permafrost, and The Birmingham Poetry Review. Her work has also been selected for Poetry Daily and Verse Daily and will appear in the second edition of the textbook Environmental and Nature Writing: A Writer's Guide and Anthology for Bloomsbury Academic. Currently, an assistant professor of first-year writing at Michigan State University, Kimberly volunteers at The Telling Room and Portland Adult Education and is a member of the Association of Writers and Publishers, Maine Writers and Publishers Alliance, and the National Association for Poetry Therapy. She lives, with her husband, in Maine. Pronouns: she/her

PUBLICATIONS

BOOKS

Gaslight (poetry), Texas Review Press, the university press of SHSU, forthcoming 2027

Interacting with the plot, script, and characters of the 1944 cinematic production of Gaslight starring Ingrid Bergman, Charles Boyer, and Joseph Cotton, this book of poems—titled for the film—exposes the dynamics of gaslighting as the book's speaker performs her troubled marriage and mind alongside the experiences of Bergman's character in the film. In both stories, a husband's effort to hide secret vices and identities emboldens him to manipulate his wife's sanity.

Call Me Crazy (memoir), Unsolicited Press, forthcoming 2026

Biting, funny, tear-filled, heady, and heart-rending, Call Me Crazy delves into the complicated dynamics of leaving a domestic violence situation and surviving dating and misogyny in its aftermath. Women fill these pages, relating to each other as well as the men who see their bodies as commodities, demonstrating that it's not easy being on the bottom of the gender food chain in a consumerist society.

Wolves in Shells (poetry), University of Nebraska Press, winner of the 2024 Backwater's Prize in Poetry, forthcoming 2025

- finalist for the 2022 Hollis Summers Poetry Prize, Ohio State University
- finalist for the 2023 The Levis Prize, Four Way Books

Reflecting on her familial heritage, a mother grapples with the way she, women of her history, and her daughter have been conditioned to accommodate the demands of male ego and predation as she attempts to leave a violent partner. In three sections, Wolves in Shells is clear-eyed and incisive, casting O-Six, a wolf born into the rewilding territory of Yellowstone National Park in the 90s, as a metaphor for the woman who escapes and must survive on her own.

tether & lung (poetry), Texas Review Press, the university press of SHSU, forthcoming 2025

- finalist for the 2021 Moon City Poetry Award, Missouri State University

Set in rural Michigan, tether & lung embraces a level of honest sensuality and vulnerability as a heterosexual woman grapples with the needs of her own body while her closeted homosexual husband seeks solace in the animals he loves—his horses. Here, compassion and contempt face each other, asking difficult questions concerning gender, alienation, child-rearing, domestic violence, and divorce.

“Like the finest impressionist paintings, these poems’ medium of linguistic light and shadow render the many nuances of a heartfelt and hard-won life, testament to the joys and sorrows of womanhood, motherhood, and marriage. Like the most compelling collections, this book elucidates our understanding of struggles and hopes with utterly unique and surprising tropes.” —Richard Blanco, fifth Presidential Inaugural Poet and author of Homeland of my Body

Floralia (poetry) Unsolicited Press, forthcoming 2025

- selections published in chapbook Parrot Flower, Glass Poetry Press, 2021

Unsettling and cinematic, Floralia documents the cyclical and intimate nature of sexual assault, a crime often committed against the body by a person familiar to the victim. Written in three sections, these poems and a radio play confront the insidious influence of abuse and public voyeurism, while providing a window into a victim's interiority. Priest writes through the process of survival, what it takes for a person to live with trauma and all the real ways in which it manifests. Some of the proceeds from this book will benefit organizations to help women fleeing domestic violence and indigenous women.

“In a poetry that is as compassionate as it is beautiful, Priest shows us how even attempting to name a trauma is a nonlinear effort, a heart’s ongoing work.” –Chen Chen, author of Your Emergency Contact has Experienced an Emergency

Slaughter the One Bird (poetry), Sundress Publications, 2021

- finalist for the 2021 American Book Fest Awards in “contemporary poetry”
- finalist for the 2021 American Book Fest Awards in “nature poetry”
- “Trailer House” featured on Verse Daily

Kimberly Ann Priest's debut full-length collection of poetry, Slaughter the One Bird, is a haunting and incisive meditation on the enduring effects of childhood sexual abuse. Reflecting on the impact of trauma on her memories and role as a mother, Priest intertwines past and present in a series of lyrical confessions and meditations on power and grief.

“Priest’s poems do the hard work of expanding the language for exploring the experience of abuse and trauma, which means they expand our understanding of (in)humanity. These poems are never predictable. They are like flashes of light in shadowed rooms—dark rooms—with bright, illuminating flashes.” –Sue William Silverman, author of If the Girl Never Learns and How to Survive Death and Other Inconveniences.

CHAPBOOKS

The Optimist Shelters in Place (poetry), Harbor Editions, 2022

- Community of Literary Magazines and Presses (CLMP) End of Year List for Best Poetry Books, 2022

A series of vignettes, this chapbook follows the daily routines of a divorced woman at the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic, during which she ruminates on her accentuated loneliness, adult children, and death.

“Through the lens of collective tragedy and the lived experience of a woman alone, these neo-confessional poems balance the ache of imagining families “sobbing” in hospital parking lots with the personal loss of long isolation, the fresh finality of divorce, and even the tedious need to clean the shower.” –Lisa Fay Coutley, author of tether

Parrot Flower (poetry), Glass Poetry Press, 2021

- finalist for the 2019 Laurel Review Midwest Chapbook Competition
- finalist for the 2019 the Bateau Press Chapbook Competition
- semi-finalist for the 2019 Black River Chapbook Competition

In Parrot Flower, a young couple, both survivors of childhood sexual assault, turn to one another and synthetic sources to cope with the trauma that haunts them. Drawing from letters written between Charles Darwin and Joseph Dalton Hooker, the compositions of John Cage, and the story of Brent Brent’s—a serial rapist in Denver during the 90s—Parrot Flower, explores the process of survival in a series of untitled lyrics. Here, a couple reveals the artifice of avoiding against the authenticity of exploring dark emotions as they are named, dismissed, and reflected in the other.

"Like the eponymous flowers, the poems in Parrot Flower oscillate, beautifully, between the familiar and strange, between the therapeutic and poisonous. It's unsettling and cinematic, as if, on the other side of these pages, someone was holding a showing of Hiroshima Mon Amour." -Sam Cha, author of The Yellow Book

still life (poetry), PANK, finalist for the Little Book Awards, 2020

- semi-finalist for the 2019 New Delta Review Chapbook Competition still life is a fractured carnival of language, each poem casting a pedophile in a new setting under the inspired control of objects and expectations as the assaulted speaker of these poems is vicariously vivified and muted by animated memories of the pedophilic act. The poems are linguistically tight, prose-y, and punctuated so that the pedophile feels immediately present and inseparable from the speaker.

"Hold tight, this collection will take you on a journey, as it leans into the underbelly of "where the smoke becomes insightful." -Kelly Grace Thomas, author of Boat Burned

White Goat, Black Sheep (poetry), Finishing Line Press, 2017

This compelling extended lyric bears witness to a young girl's experience with early sexual trauma as she addresses her younger sister, also a victim of the same abusive act. The linked poems are both powerful and beautiful as the sister attempts to make sense of their reeling minds and bodies within a world of inspired trees and rivers, aphids and stones, and a mother trying to cope with an assault she knows nothing about. Each stanza is incantatory, mystical, and enlightening.

"Haunted, harrowing, blessed—these intertwined, incantatory lyrics, spoken to a sister, dream a winding river from suffering toward a truer redemption." -Robert Fanning, author of Our Sudden Museum, American Prophet, and The Seed Thieves

ANTHOLOGIES

Environmental and Nature Writing: A Writer's Guide and Anthology, 2nd ed., Bloomsbury's Writer's Guides and Anthologies, Ed. Sean Prentiss and Joe Wilkins, Bloomsbury Academic, Bloomsbury Publishing, forthcoming 2025

- "Protections"

Offering guidance on writing poetry, nonfiction, and fiction, Environmental and Nature Writing is a complete introduction to the art and craft of writing about the environment in a wide range of genres. The book also includes an anthology, offering inspiring examples of nature writing in all the genres covered by the book.

Take the Fruit, Flood the Desert: A Religious Trauma Anthology, forthcoming

- "Preacher's Daughter"

If you were part of the Church, did you question its doctrine, and the way church leaders/family members used it to lead you? Were you confused about faith's impact on your relationship to your body, sex, identity, and boundaries? How did the threat of eternal damnation affect you? Did you experience anxiety, self-loathing, an inability to make decisions? Take the Fruit, Flood the Desert is an anthology that rejects the concept of original sin by collecting writing from religious-trauma survivors. This Flood for our times seeks to cleanse us of shame and embody once-forbidden knowledge.

#SPIRIT, White Stag Publishing, 2023

- “A Ritha for Wissal” (what is your death....)
- “A Ritha for Wissal” (Sister, I will speak of love....)

Spirit embodies the ether / the quintessence. It is the ethereal space & what dwells within it; divine beings, spirits & the Fae, even the supra natural. It is engrained in all cultures, in various ways throughout the world; through magic & science, myth & fable. This anthology includes poetry that explores Spirit in its many forms from over 40 different authors from all over the world.

Dwell, South Broadway Press + The Village Institute, 2022

- “I Am Trying to Remember if I Married for Love”

Partnering with a local non-profit, The Village Institute, to raise funds for their operations which include bringing housing, language learning, job readiness workshops, and mental health services to refugee and immigrant families, South Broadway Press’s 2022 anthology will explore representations and meanings of “dwell” in poetry and short hybrid pieces.

The Ending Hasn’t Happened Yet, Sable Books, 2021

- “A Body Memory,” The Mockingheart Review
- “Ghosts,” Borderlands: the Texas Poetry Review

This anthology features work from disabled, chronically ill, and neurodivergent writers. The collection catalogs the intersection between disability and trauma and explores how trauma persists in daily life, even following the 'end' of the traumatic event.

Aeolian Harp Anthology, Volume Seven, Glass Lyre Press, 2021

- “Elegy for My Daughter Who Has Never Known a Paradise,” Salamander Magazine
- “Spirit of the Animal,” Borderlands: Texas Poetry Review
- "Upon Viewing Katrín Sigurdardóttir’s ‘Metamorphic’” Harbor Review
- “At the Monastic Retreat in Erie, Pennsylvania”
- “My Grandmother’s Ashes”
- “The World is Whatever We Choose to Make It,” About Place Journal

This annual anthology consists of ten “folio” sections for each poet, containing six pieces by each author, of which at least one is previously unpublished. Poems are of any topic and style or form. Each selected author’s photo, micro-bio, and personal essay is followed by their sampling of work.

Rewilding: Poems for the Environment Anthology, Split Rock Review, Flexible Press, 2020

- “Protections”
- “The Butterfly Habitat”

Rewilding: Poems for the Environment is an essential volume of contemporary poetry that encourages us to reevaluate and restore our relationship with the nonhuman world, featuring poems by Camille Dungy, Joy Harjo, Ted Kooser, Aimee Nezhukumatathil, Craig Santos Perez, Karen Solie, and a 100 more renowned and emerging poets.

New Poetry from the Midwest Anthology, New American Press, 2020

- “Practice,” Winner of the 2019 Heartland Poetry Prize, from Slaughter the One Bird

“Midwestern” is a term both vague and diverse in meaning. This annual anthology seizes on these qualities, gathering the best work from the Midwest. Containing stories and poems with heart, it explodes the generally accepted notions of what the Midwest is and what Midwestern writing is, while honoring its rich and long-standing traditions.

Screaming from the Silence Anthology, Nightingale and Sparrow Press, 2020

- “my pedophile prefers my childhood”
- “After Molested the Child Remembers Nothing”
- “The Scream”

Though there are lots of projects published and forthcoming that give a much-needed voice to those affected by sexual violence, there isn’t a space specifically for those who aren’t comfortable sharing their name alongside their stories. The Screaming from the Silence anthology hopes to fill that gap and provide that space for poets, writers, and artists. A portion of all profits from sales will be donated to the Joyful Heart Foundation and the National Sexual Violence Resource Center.

Women Under Scrutiny: An Anthology of Truths, Essay, Poems, Stories, and Art, Brooklyn Girls Books, 2020

- “Record of Wrongs,” Contest Winner

Women Under Scrutiny is an honest, intimate examination of the relationships we have with our bodies, hair, and faces, how we’ve been treated by the world based on our appearance—and how we have treated others.

What Keeps us Here: Songs from The Other Side of Trauma, Anti-Heroine Chic, 2019

- “A Reflection on Pathos”

This anthology features authors from Anti-Heroine Chic Magazine focusing on trauma and healing.

Hashtag Queer: LGBTQ + Creative Anthology, Volume 1, Qommunity LLC, 2017

- “Not Human”

Hashtag Queer is a collection of short work in all literary genres (fiction, non-fiction, poetry, scripts) written by and/or about LGBTQ+ people and lives. Many of the pieces are about different aspects of queerness and being queer, while others are about other aspects of life experienced through a queer lens.
